Stuck of Autism

= Lemons

You need lots of lemons to make lemonade.

Lemons cannot be changed into oranges.

I choose to make lemonade.
My Sensory Lemons

hearing

seeing smelling tasting touching proprioception

- tells us where our bodies are in space
- receptors located in the joints and muscles

vestibular
- provides feedback about our bodies in motion
- receptors located in the inner ear

We take in information from the world around us through our senses.

Information may come in magnified.

Information may come in minimized.

Information may come in distorted.
It may be perceived this way:

...or maybe this way:

We process information differently.

We store information differently.

Style of thinking is:

- Concrete
- Literal
- Think in Pictures

- Silent Pool
- Talkbox scape Court
- Gray Square Lookout
- Hummingbird Lane
- Lake View Drive
- Vanilla Tunnel

where she can disengage from the outside world where she can find comfortable matching colors to see where she can see the repeating pattern of the same speckled grey squares on the floors everywhere where she can identify the same few measures of the very same tune over and over again where she can watch or listen to moving water in the lake or in the shower or in the sink or in the toilet where she can stroke something very smooth and soft or something with a repetitive pattern of texture Therefore, behavior may look different.

Behavioral supports
- Communication systems
- Sensory opportunities
- Visual schedules/supports

Recap
- Sensory lessons of autism
- Differences in taking in, processing, sharing information
- Common behavioral supports
- Importance of relationships

Art on the Square

Information may come in
- Ice cubes in a glass
Nan's car driving itself
We process information differently.

Kate's snowmobile suit
We store information differently.

Style of thinking includes:
- Concrete
- Literal
- Think in pictures

bells on Bobtail ring bottomless cup
undies in a bundle

Therefore, may look different.
signs in the laundry mat
and bathroom

Let's Dance on the Beach!

Books and materials by Judy Endow

To order, contact:
Autism Asperger Publishing Company
PO Box 23173
Shawnee Mission, KS 66283-0173
www.asperger.net
(913) 897-1004